Nervous Prostration

Complete Recovery by the Use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"Some years ago, as a result of too close attention to business, my health failed. I became weak, nervous, and unable to look after my interests, and manifested all the symptoms of a decline. I took three bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, began to improve at once, and gradually increased my weight from one hundred and twenty-five to two hundred pounds. Since then, I and my family have used this medicine whenever needed, and we are all in the best of health, a fact which we attribute to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I believe my children would have been fatherless today had it not been for Ayer's Sarsaparilla, of which preparation I cannot say too much."—H. O. HISSON, Postmaster and Planter, Kinross, S. C.

A PREMIUM OF $225 WAS PAID FOR

$25,000 Fergus Falls city bonds.

ANOKA will probably be selected as the place for the location of the new insane asylum.

The fate of Harry Hayward will be decided Nov. 4th, at which time the argument will be presented to the supreme court.

New receivers are being appointed for the Northern Pacific almost daily, and a court that can't boast of having added to the number isn't strictly in it. There are eight now, and the courts are still in session.

HAVING failed in running an exposition of its own, Minneapolis now wants to organize one to be supported by the northwest, and to be known as the Northwestern Exposition. Its a move to boom the Twin Cities at the expense of the country districts.

LOTHROP will have a newspaper before long and will put on metropolitan airs. This will hurt Bro. Oliver's feelings, for he tried to get a foot hold in the thriving town near Leech Lake some time ago, but the powers that be told him they didn't want a newspaper there.

THE Louisville Courier-Journal, democratic, sums up the political situation in Kentucky as follows: "The democratic party under its present conditions is not a party at all; it is simply a monster without a head, running loose through the wilderness of political incertitude."

A SAN FRANCISCO woman has left her husband and wants a divorce because her husband would not read the proceedings of the Durant murder case to her every day. This is a new idea and should be incorporated in Dakota's divorce laws at once, if she wants to retain her chief industry.

PRIZE fighting has received a serious setback in Minnesota at the hands of Gov. Clough. The people of this state have a right to congratulate the governor on his stand in the matter, and we suggest that he will make more friends by his action than he made in his visits to the numerous fairs this fall.

THE Duluth Tribune suggests that Grover Cleveland would be a fit person for United States fish commissioner. His chances for the position, even under a republican administration, would be better than they are for a third term, and then think how much better he would fill the place, than the one he now holds.

THE Minnesota editors who were so fortunate as to be able to go on the editorial excursion to Atlanta have returned and report a very pleasant trip. Look out now for political tips for the boys talked it all over during their leisure moments, and probably decided just what this great state needed in the way of office-holders after January, 1896.

THE Sovereign boycott on national bank currency does not seem to have been a howling success. The Minneapolis Tribune remarks: "Let's see, Sovereign's boycott of the national bank currency was to begin on Sept. 1st. Well, September has passed, and we hear nothing of the boycott. We do not believe that a single national bank note has been refused in consequence of Sovereign's order."

THE state superintendent of public instruction has submitted his October school apportionment, the same being $2.65 per capita this year, which is ten cents less than in 1894, which is accounted for by the free text book law. In counties where the free text book law has been adopted there has been an average increase of 10 per cent in attendance. Crow Wing county this year has 2,276 children in her schools and her allowance is $6,031.40. Cass county has 368 children attending school and receives $925.20.

THIS is a Good One.

The Grand Rapids Herald says that Alexander Phair, better known as "Sandy," came to town the other day in search of a lawyer. He wanted to swear out a warrant for the arrest of the state. He had been attacked by a mouse on Willow river, where he was moving for Powers & Simpson. Sandy was badly used up in the fight but finally succeeded in mowing down his assailant. A law should be passed to protect citizens against these vicious beasts. Sandy says he proposes to push the case to the full limit of the law and thinks he has good grounds on which to recover damages.

THE people of Little Falls are considering the question of adopting the new general charter law passed by the last session of the legislature, on account of being unable to fund the city's floating indebtedness under the general law for cities under 5,000 population, says the Transcript. It is supposed that under its provisions the city would be able to pay its floating debt, and it is certain that it would not allow an increase of the debt again. That provision is one of the best features of the charter. The council levies or appropriates a certain sum for a certain purpose, and when the amount so levied or appropriated is exhausted, that expense is assumed by the city. The council levies or appropriates a certain sum for a certain purpose, and when the amount so levied or appropriated is exhausted, that expense is assumed by the city.

THE Palais Royal by Napoleon III. resided the younger branch of the reigning family, had at all times been a focus of opposition, and, although the princes who lived there during the empire owed everything to Napoleon III, the old traditions were in this respect thoroughly revived. The poor emperor, always kind, always gentle, always generous, was overpowered by the unpleasant relatives coming to him from his great predecessor, so that he might well answer, as he did on one occasion when reproached by the aged Prince Jerome with having "nothing" of his brother, the great emperor, "I have his family."

Don't Want Tramps.

The two great trunk lines of railroad passing through St. Cloud have commenced an active war-fare against the nuisance of the indiscriminate carrying of tramps on their trains. At St. Cloud the former road has two watchmen in the yards and at Barnesville there are four. The Northern Pacific also has several watchmen at its terminal points. These watchmen make it their special duty to guard against tramps and returning harvest hands boarding freight trains, and, whether with the consent of the railroad companies' trainmen or not, boarding the cars and being carried. Hundreds of these men are transported each season and with no increase of revenue to the railroad companies. Many of them have money sufficient to pay their fares on the regular passenger trains, but prefer to "bum" their way. Besides, the companies suffer from losing goods while in transit by reason of men boarding these loaded cars.—St. Cloud Journal-Press.

Curfew.

As many of the smaller cities in Minnesota and adjacent states have lately passed what is called a "curfew" ordinance, by which persons under sixteen years are liable to arrest if found on the streets after nine o'clock at night, unless accompanied by some person of full legal age, it will be of interest to know what "curfew" really is, or was. About the time of the conquest of England by William of Normandy, the house-fire was a hole in the middle of the roof of earth, under an opening in the roof by which the smoke escaped. This was universal in Europe as well as England, among the common people at least. The "curfew bell" was a signal to the people to "couvre feu" (cover the fire) and retire to rest. Originally it seems to have been a sensible precaution against conflagrations in towns built chiefly of thatched-covered wooden huts, but its severe enforcement in England by the Conqueror is said to have been to prevent secret seditious assemblages of the people. The absolute prohibition of all lights was removed in 1100 A. D. by Henry I. The hours varied from seven to nine o'clock at night, and in Scotland ten was not an unusual hour. It seems, therefore, that a revival of "curfew" is a step backward of several hundred years, to a day when our ancestors were little better than ignorant savages. It may become quite the thing in our country, but in one thing at least our people will not be content to retrace their steps. They will never exchange the splendid railroad service of this day for the ancient stage-coach or the canal boat. Among the railroads of America there is none to excel in completeness of equipment, or extent of territory covered, or the great Burlington Route. Always ask your home agent for a ticket by this line when about to travel, or write for information to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Japanese Carving.

Japanese art is supreme in wood and ivory carving. Sir Edwin Arnold declares, in "Seas and Lands," there is nothing known to him in Europe that comes near what Japanese workmen can achieve. A specimen of ivory carving was shown to him, which represented a bag of rice with two or three dozen rats in and upon it.

Every rat was as individual in character, position and action as if a special portrait had been taken of him, and the web of the bag, the glistening grains of rice and the sleek fur of the rodents could not have been better expressed in painting.

At an art store in Yokohama he examined a piece of wood carving representing two life sized wrestlers struggling in the ring. Every muscle and every vein was delineated. Every tendon and ligament was anatomically perfect.

It drew a constant crowd, and a policeman informed the proprietor of the store that, if he intended to continue the wrestling on his premises, he must engage a posse of policemen to restrain the crowd. He was invited into the store and melted into smiles when he saw that the wrestlers were carvings of wood.

The Oldest the Youngest.

Some of us know middle-aged men who think it a hardship not to be allowed to play marbles and even leapfrog. If they dared they would still take part in boyish "battles." The death of Matthew Arnold, the apostle of "sweetness and light," was caused in his sixty-fifth year by leaping over a fence in a fit of juvenile high spirits.

Swedenborg imagines that in heaven the angels advance continually to the prime of youth, so that those who have been there longest are the youngest. Some of us have friends who seem to fall ill this idea. They preserve the freshness, guilelessness, hopefulness and elasticity of youth. They have put away the weakness, imperfection and immaturity of childhood. They retain its open mind and heart—"in wit, a man; in simplicity, a child."—Chambers' Journal.

A Clever Retort by Napoleon III.

The Palais Royal by Napoleon III. resided the younger branch of the reigning family, had at all times been a focus of opposition, and, although the princes who lived there during the empire owed everything to Napoleon III, the old traditions were in this respect thoroughly revived. The poor emperor, always kind, always gentle, always generous, was overpowered by the unpleasant relatives coming to him from his great predecessor, so that he might well answer, as he did on one occasion when reproached by the aged Prince Jerome with having "nothing" of his brother, the great emperor, "I have his family."

Jack's Vegetables.

A vessel being ready for sailing, the captain ordered a new hand to take a boat to shore and buy 10 shillings' worth of vegetables. Not being certain of the meaning of the word, the man applied to the first individual he met. "I say, mate, what might vegetables be?" "Vegetables," the stranger replied. "Why, peas are vegetables, for instance."

That'll do," said Jack.

Having got his sack filled with peas, he pulled back to the ship, and when alongside the captain called out, "Have you got those vegetables?" "Yes, sir."

"All right," said the captain.

"Then hand them up one by one."

"By gad," said Jack, scratching his head.

"I have got a job now and no mistake."—London Telegraph.

WHAT TO EAT AND WHEN.

The Rules to Regulate Diet to Age and Occupation.

An adult in average health requires, as a rule, about three meals a day, and these may be arranged as follows: Breakfast at 8:30, lunch at 1:30, dinner at 7.

In country places, where dinner is taken in the middle of the day, a light tea is taken at 5 and supper at 8, and when there is late dinner a cup of tea may, as a rule, be taken without eating at 5 o'clock.

The tendency in adults is very much toward overeating, for food is not required in the adult body in order to supply growth, but only to support waste of tissue. It is therefore evident that those who lead a comparatively idle life without much exertion, either mental or physical, require very much less food than those who are engaged in active occupations.

Business men who have to be moving about much in the middle of the day should not take heavy lunches, but should make their chief meal in the evening.

The practice of taking soup at the beginning of dinner is based on a sufficiently scientific principle, as when a small quantity of strong, good soup is taken the liquid that is rapidly absorbed into the blood refreshes and stimulates and prepares the way for more solid meals.

Sufferers from indigestion, however, often find that they cannot take soup, and these should avoid taking strong tea or coffee after dinner, as they retard the process of digestion.

Some persons who have slow digestions do best with very long intervals between their meals, others need food more frequently, and if they do not have it at frequent intervals the appetite passes off and they are unable to eat, and grow weak.

As a rule, women require less food than men, as their bodies are smaller and they do not generally lead such active lives, but they very often injure their health very much by living principally on tea and toast, cakes and other indigestible articles of diet when they have no male relatives present to stimulate them by the force of example into taking more nourishing articles of food.

Elderly persons of either sex are, as a rule, unable to digest or assimilate food in the same way as in their younger days, owing to the progressive degenerative changes in the glands and lessened power in the alimentary canal.

The amount of food taken at a time should be small, and the intervals between meals rather short. When, as in many cases, it is the habit to awaken about 4 o'clock in the morning, a little food, such as a cup of cocoa or warm milk or beef tea, will often insure sleep afterward.

All farinaceous foods should be submitted to high temperatures for some time, so as to render the granules of starch easy to digest, for owing to the lessened activity of the glands and lessened power of mastication the food in old people is, like that of young children, not sufficiently subjected to the action of ptyalin in the mouth.

Stewed celery and cooked Spanish onions are very nice for old people, and old gentlemen have been known to take Spanish onions cooked in milk habitually for supper, saying that this induces sleep.—Lady's Pictorial.

It Worked Both Ways.

Little Jacky had two apples, which he had saved from dessert. There was company in the room, and one of the gentlemen thought it would be a good opportunity to give Jacky a lesson in manners. So he called the boy and said: "I see you have two apples, Jacky. Won't you give me one?"

Jacky hesitated, looked rather ruefully at his prizes and finally offered the smaller one. This was what the gentleman had expected, and he proceeded to expatiate upon it, ending with: "Now, Jacky, whenever you have anything to give away you should always keep the poorest for yourself."

This might be good manners, but it didn't harmonize with Jacky's desires. So he ruminated over it awhile, and then stuck out the other fist.

"Take 'other one, too," he said generously. The gentleman was congratulating himself on his success, when Jacky stammered him by saying: "Now, won't you please give me one?"—Boston Standard.

No Use.

Briggs—I knew the cook would burn the steak this morning as usual, so I lay awake last night and got up the finest sort of a sarcastic speech for her benefit. I sprung the speech, and she downed me the other first.

Briggs—What did she say?

Briggs—She said, "Aw, you talk like a string of fish." Now, how could I answer that?—Indianapolis Journal.

Jack's Vegetables.

The Popular Ida Van Cortlandt Co. Coming.

On Monday evening, Oct. 14th, this popular company will commence a week's engagement at the opera house, presenting an entirely new repertoire of standard plays. On Monday evening "Queens" will be presented for the first time in Brainerd. There is scarcely a theatre-goer in this city that does not remember with pleasure this popular company which played the most successful engagement ever known in Brainerd last season. The scale of prices will be as follows: Circle, 50 cents; Parquet, 35 cents; Admission, 25 cents; entire gallery, 15 cents. Special matinee Saturday afternoon at 2:30, when the prices will be 25 cents to any part of the house. Children 15 cents. Among the other plays to be presented are: "Forget-Me-Not," "New Magdalen," "Leah, the Forsaken," "Damon and Pythias," "One Touch of Nature," and "Partners for Life." The Winnipeg Free Press says of the company: "The prediction that Miss Cortlandt would lead the leading role in 'A New Magdalen' eminently suited to her powers was verified last evening. To say that she acted to perfection is high praise, but not undue praise. Mr. Butler, too, breaks out in quite new places. From the savage 'Ingomar' to the gentle 'Rev. Julian Garz' is a long step, but it is difficult to say whether he is better as a barbarian or a parson. The audience last evening, among others, contained Sir Charles H. and Lady Tupper, who were highly pleased with the entertainment."

Thinks It Will Help Case County.

The turning of part of the flow of the Crow Wing into Gull and attached lakes which are to be dried and used as reservoirs to equalize the outflow of water from this section of the Crow Wing and Mississippi rivers, seems to be an assured thing. We have a report stating that draining, preparatory to starting the lower dam, has already been commenced; that the congressional appropriation sought is said by those who have looked the matter up, to be forthcoming without opposition; and that the work of putting up dikes will probably commence in the early spring. This will give employment for scores of men which will last, say, something like three years. The expenditure of so much hard cash will afford the people of Cass an opportunity to place themselves on a solid financial basis, which will be a lasting benefit to the county, and the storing of water there will make the driving business of this part of the county a certainty each year which the occasional droughts sometimes delays entire seasons.

Brainerd Dispatch.

INGERSOLL & WIELAND, PUBLISHERS.

BRAINERD, MINNESOTA.

A London dispatch asserts that many old families are in need of cash. There is evidently a shortage of American beavers, or that state of things would not obtain.

The people of the United States are in favor of the enforcement of the neutrality laws, of course, but when such laws are evaded in behalf of a country fighting for liberty, they are inclined to condone the offense.

H. H. Holmes persists in asserting that he is not guilty of wholesale murder. It is hardly worth while to lay great stress on that point, inasmuch as a very limited retail business in that line is sufficient to hang him.

Artificial flowers were invented by nuns. In the Italian convents the altars and shrines were up to the end of the 18th century, decorated with artificial flowers, made of paper and parchment, and made of paper and parchment.

It is a pity the new chemical armory jacket was not in use when Stonewall Jackson fed his troops on supplies captured in the Shenandoah Valley. The new jacket is the best thing yet invented to fall into the hands of the enemy.

A number of Brooklyn women, all arrayed in bloomers, will meet one day next week to take a spin of 100 miles on the wheel, getting back home in time for supper. It is useless to deny that something resembling a new woman is abroad in the land.

A railway across Arabia from Ismail, on the Suez Canal, to the head of the Persian Gulf, following as nearly as possible the 13th degree of latitude for nearly 1,000 miles, is now under consideration. The engineering difficulties are not serious.

The United States board of geographic names has decided that Korea and Chemulpo is the proper spelling, and that Bluefield, not Blewfield, is the title of the Nicaraguan town. The edict of the board that Havana must be changed to Habana is slightly revolutionary. But all departments of the United States government must accept the amendment.

In Glen Mulick Forest, Aberdeenshire a "record" deerstalk was accomplished recently by Captain Maxse, Coldstream Guards, who managed in one stalk to bring down three magnificent stags, including a "royal," an "eleven-point" and a "ten-pointer," each weighing over 16 stone after cleaning. The royal was the heaviest, at 16 stone 9 pounds, and is reported to be a very fine head.

Campes does not intend to take the offensive until he gets the 25,000 additional troops which are promised to him in November. Then he will have a little over 100,000 men under his command. This is three times as many as the British ever had in this country at one time during the Revolution. It is clear that the Spaniards do not believe their story that the insurgents comprise merely a few thousand guerrillas.

Once more the New York Central railroad has beaten the record for fast time in a long run. The train that has earned distinction is the special which carries morning papers from New York to Syracuse—148 miles—was covered by the special in 130 minutes, an average of 68.3 miles per hour. This is the age of steam. When electricity comes of its own the records made with steam will seem slow.

A whole village of well-to-do Italians, speaking English with an accent, is one of the most astonishing things that Italy offers to the tourist. They are retired organ-grinders, who have acquired comfortable fortunes in various countries, and have gone back to their beloved native land to live in affluence with their families in this remote little colony, which they have founded among these sweet Italian mountains.

New York is discussing the contagiousness of cancer, with two remarkable cases under consideration. A woman is said to have caught cancer of the tongue through using a speaking tube in common with a man thus afflicted, and Dr. Burnett, who treated the woman, also contracted the disease in the cheek while shaving. The original patient and the physician are dead and the woman is dying. The disease in the three cases was of exactly the same type.

The steamer St. Paul is one of the class of ocean liners that can be called into service in the navy in case of war. There are four magnificent ships of this class, built in American ship yards, viz: The City of Paris, the City of New York, the St. Louis and the St. Paul. They are swifter than the fastest cruiser, and strong enough to carry an armament about as heavy as that of the Minneapolis. They thus constitute an effective naval reserve.

It is supposed by some good judges of the course of affairs in South America that Chili has an ambition to dominate the whole of that continent, and that its alliance with Peru means a war with the Argentine Republic within a year. Chili possesses the most serviceable army and navy in South America, and its aggressive dealings with its neighbors showing that it is well aware of the fact.

The Argentine congress recently held a secret session to consider the hostile attitude of Chili, and Brazil also is watchful of the growing Chilean military establishment.

Lieut. Peary's two voyages to Greenland have served to strengthen the theory that the only way to advance in the far arctic region is by sledge approaches, and even these would have to be scientifically conducted, for Peary's party on the last journey nearly starved through the failure to find the spot where a large quantity of provisions were stored. The explorer has learned that the snow and ice of Greenland are even more terrible than he supposed, the game scarce and the average weather the cause of constant suffering. The wild dashes made to reach the pole have been more or less disastrous and have become tiresome. A slow march upon it, keeping the "cracker lake" open, with deposits of abundant supplies at frequent intervals, is the rational plan, and the cost of this would be many millions.

Thinks It Will Help Cass County.
The Cass County Pioneer in its last issue contains the following:
The turning of part of the flow of the Crow Wing into Gull and attached lakes which are to be diked and used as reservoirs to equalize the outflow of water from this section of the Crow Wing and Mississippi rivers, seems to be an assured thing. We have a report stating that draining, preparatory to starting the lower dam, has already been commenced; that the congressional appropriation sought is said by those who have looked the matter up, to be forthcoming without opposition; and that the work of putting up dikes will probably commence in the early spring. This will give employment for scores of men which will last, they say, something like three years. The expenditure of so much hard cash will afford the people of Cass an opportunity to place themselves on a solid financial basis, which will be a lasting benefit to the county, and the storing of water there will make the driving business of this part of the county a certainty each year which the occasional droughts sometimes delays entire seasons.
